Small-Sided Soccer Games

Soccer games with fewer players on a smaller field.
This is done for several different reasons that we have listed below.

1. Better Individual Skill Development- As a result of having fewer players sharing on ball, players will be able to touch the ball more and become more skillful with it
2. Better Tactical Development- Not only will players be able to make more decisions, those decision will be less-complicated with a smaller field and fewer players
3. More efficient- Players will become more efficient in the field space with a smaller field
4. More individual teaching time- Fewer players on the field and team will mean that the coach can spend more time with each player
5. More Involved Playing Time- With less players on the field each player will be able to participate
6. More opportunity to play offense and defense- players will have more exposure to attacking and defending and game situations
7. More opportunity to score goals- the field will be more open and players can play and score in space
